

DESIGNED FOR OUTFITTERS

Jon Stram of Anchorage ingeniously designed ScopeShield riflescope covers to solve decades of hunting client and guide frustrations with flip-up style hunting scope covers.

Now these covers are available to us in the lower 48. No guide or dedicated hunter should be without them.

What They Are

ScopeShield neoprene riflescope covers are simple and absolutely effective. The stretchable cover installs in seconds, keeps the hunting scope clean, clear and dry, yet releases instantaneously in the field.

Just as importantly, the forearm keeper loop assures that the cover will never fall from the rifle or distract the shooter at the hard-earned moment of truth. The slingshot release and fall away keeper enable most all riflemen to keep eyes constantly on the target, not on the scope.

Many outfitters and guides despise flip-up type covers because of snagging, breaking, and partial or full detachment when utilizing rifle scabbards. ScopeShields glide like silk.

How They Work

After detaching the forearm sling swivel, the keeper loop slides down over the muzzle and forearm.

The sling is then reattached.

The cover is stretched over the scope
